

Upholstered Beds: Stuff of Dreams

Fluo bed from San Giacomo

If your customers or clients have a soft spot for upholstered beds, do one better than a simple leather- or fabric-wrapped panel or insert. Invite them to sleep on a fully upholstered “cloud” that can be floated in the master suite.

New upholstered platform-style beds create sleep sanctuaries that wrap the sleeper(s) in plush comfort. Consider Mauro Lipparini’s Basket bed for Bonaldo, for instance. The soft, rounded headboard—available in fabric, leather or Skay eco-leather, and with fully removable slipcovers—envelops the sleeper. Basket is offered with under-bed storage, and a choice of either anthracite grey or silver painted wood feet.

Selva navigates curves beautifully with its new Astoria bed. The design presents a unique headboard-cum-privacy screen shell that creates a cocoon-like effect. The distinct headboard’s exterior is cherry veneer in a choice of five finishes, while the interior is fabric with button tufts.

Cross-stitch tufts give Fluo bed from San Giacomo (available in the United States through Leif Petersen) its relaxed vibe. Synthetic down-filled cushions create a plush, pillow look that recalls classic European upholstery cushions.

Nathan Anthony's statement-making Sabine upholstered bed, a splendid follow-up to a sofa, chaise and ottoman done up in the same style, mixes old Hollywood glamour with Mid-Century undertones. Ample curves and slight pitch throughout create a sculptural form offered in a choice solid velvet, chenille or linen. Choose from eight finishes for shapely wood feet, or metal feet are available in three tones.

Basket bed from Bonaldo

Selva's Astoria bed

Sabine upholstered bed from Nathan Anthony.